What the Picture Theaters Have to Tell You.

"THE UNWELCOME MOTHER," FOX PICTURE AT PASTIME

STRONG PICTURE OF SEA
Showing today for the last time is the William Fox drama, "The Unwelcome Mother," with Walter Law and all star cast. This is a picture of the sea and as usual Fox has scored a complete success. In addition is shown the new Selig Athletic Picture. Remember, today is the last chance to see this picture.

SCREEN DRAMA RUNS GAMUT OF PICTURESQUE SCENES

Lillian Walker Featured.
A remarkably clever comparison is drawn in the Vitagraph feature film, "Hesper of the Mountains," which is the headliner at the Pastime Theater on Sunday and Monday.

From the luxurious, idle life of the wealthy magnate in the suburbs of some city to the hard, work-a-day existence of the miner runs the action of the story and in this way, a number of extremely clever comparisons are drawn.

First, we see a Saturday evening dance at the mining town. All the men congregate in front of the ramshackle structure with their rough homespun garments. When the old fiddler arrives they adjourn to the hall where the women have strung faded bunting and waxed the floor with candles.

Then, in our imagination, we enter the brilliantly illuminated ball-room, in the suburban home—the men in spotless evening clothes enter the house with exquisitely gowned ladies upon their arms. Great limousines drive up, the occupants alight and they drive away, making room for the vehicles in the rear.

The musicians who are screened behind palms strike up the latest dance and the couples glide over the highly polished floors and through the mazes of the latest steps.

Good cheer and joviality reign in both instances—both classes are seeking the same thing—an evening's entertainment. And yet—the marked difference in the two scenes awakens within us the realization of the change a few intercepting mountains make in the customs and habits of a people.

Alta Friday and Saturday.

The place to go is the Alta Friday and Saturday, "The Stronger Love," the Morosco-Paramount screen drama shown is an invigorating story told entirely in and out of doors; in the pine woods and in the mountains.

The kind of film drama that just dealt with humans who have never stepped off their lone mountain top. But the one exception who did, returns from the city university and makes the problem of his Morosco-Paramount photoplay interesting and delightfully different. It also makes it hard for Neil Serves, Vivian Martin, the mountain beauty and her heart to decide the trying problem, of which is "The Stronger Love."

At the Cosy.

Life is not all joy, neither is the way of moving pictures always pleasant and rosy. The vogue of the screen would soon fade, if variety never intruded upon the placid surface of the voiceless "stage." The happy ending, perpetually accomplished, would soon cease to enthuse and that is why Bluebird Photoplays have introduced a tragic note in the concert of pleasant picture-acting that is abroad in the land. "The Chalice of Sorrow" names its own bent in the title; Cleo Madison will be the leading lady and the feature will form the attraction at the Cosy theater on tonight for the last time, with Westwood Nowell, Charles Cummings, John McDermott, Blanch White, Howard Crampton, Albert McQuarrie and Rhea Haines impersonating the more important characters. Rex Ingram wrote and produced the feature, his name recalling "The Great Problem" and "Broken Fetters," earlier Bluebirds of splendid repute.

Vivian Martin in "The Stronger Love"

Here is a Photoplay so unusual in its solution that one would be safe in venturing no opinion concerning its outcome up to the last minute of its closing. The struggle of this little girl of the Mountains first to save her city lover from death at the hands of the mountaineers and then to save the heart of her mountaineer lover, who has been true to her in spite of ample opportunity for misunderstanding, furnishes a theme that is not only thrilling, but that will hold the interest of all to the last foot of the film.

Better, cleaner pictures, excellent music, excellent projection at a reasonable admission price.
